Project Proposal

Text Based DND KBS

Our project is a text based DND game where you play as a traveler wandering through an unknown land to you. From a user's perspective you will experience a world through text and attempt to unravel the secrets of whatever is in the game.

Our typical user base would be anyone interested in playing video games. We are just trying to create a fun experience for all ages to enjoy retro style text games. Anyone whether they are already into playing video games or just wanting to try something else can enjoy this experience.

This project is interesting to the team because we like playing video games, and it would be interesting to create something that resembles video games from the early days. Also none of us have made a text-based adventure game before.
